Abstracts Notifications

Have you checked your inbox for the ISBNPA 2017 Annual Meeting abstract notification?

The scientific program of the Annual Meeting will hold 207 orals in 36 parallel sessions, 91 short-orals in 18 parallel sessions, 443 posters in 3 sessions and 136 symposia presentations in 45 symposia sessions.

Don't we all love numbers?

We do! Especially when they reflect great research on behavioral nutrition and physical activity.

Scholarships for LMIC

An important part of ISBNPA mission is to promote behavioral nutrition and physical activity science worldwide.

If you live in a Low and Middle-Income Country, ISBNPA, in partnership with BMC (IJBNPA editorial company) and ISBNPA fellows (whose registrations fund the ISBNPA LMIC scholarship, specially this year through the Hans Brug Scholarship), can help you fulfill your goal to present at ISBNPA 2017.

New IJBNPA Editors

We are delighted to announce that Jean Adams, Melanie Hingle, Nanna Lien, Dana Olstad, and Delfien Van Dyck have been appointed as Associate Editors of IJBNPA. Our new colleagues greatly expand the expertise of the editing team and we are pleased that we have been able to recruit such outstanding scientists.

Seeking evidence for systematic review and meta-analysis (Cochrane Review) update

Dr Anne Martin, Research Fellow at the University of Edinburgh and her colleagues are looking for cognitive or educational outcomes from published or completed childhood weight management interventions (RCTs) to include in an update of their published Cochrane Review (systematic review and meta-analysis). Interventions eligible for inclusion in the review are single or multi-component interventions targeting physical activity, dietary and/or sedentary behaviours of children and adolescents with overweight or obesity. Please contact her directly at: anne.martin@ed.ac.uk or @DrAnneMartin.

NESI (ISBNPA Student and Early Career Network)

NESI @ISBNPA 2017

Preparation for ISBNPA 2017 NESI activities is well underway. When registering for the conference you'll be able to subscribe to NESI activities such as the ECR Workshop, buddy system, NESI dinner, and NESI table at the gala dinner.

Keeping your sanity

A recent Nature issue draws attention to today's more austere conditions faced by ECRs. On a more positive note, if you're looking for support (and sanity!) in your academic endeavours, you may want to check out a new blog by Prof. Kylie Ball at Deakin University, a former Past-President and Fellow of ISBNPA - the Happy Academic.

Webinar recording

Prof. Clare Collins, University of Newcastle, Australia was our invited speaker on the "Your academic career post-PhD" webinar. She shared strategies and her personal experience of research and career development from "no-mans land" post-PhD to mid- and senior posts. The webinar recording is here.
